This seems to be a lesser known work of Fyodor Dostoyevsky (just 201 ratings so far.) The names of two characters are Pyotr Ivanitch and Ivan Petrovitch. Confusing AF! The two friends (in fact acquaintances) write a series of letters and try to meet at many places one after the other fails. The purpose of the meeting is confusing till one of the last letters. The letters are mundane but the climax is hilarious. And that's what makes this short story a classic!

Me estoy volviendo fan del autor. No sé cómo serán sus obras más largas, pero, por ahora, lo que leí me gustó mucho.

Al comenzar a leer me percate que iba a existir un paralelismo en los personajes por los nombres: Piotr Ivanovich e Iván Petróvich.

Una sátira humorística (algo atípico en el Pulento) que critica a la burocracia de su amado Peterburgo (1885), en la cual dos amigos se envían cartas ya que, por diversos motivos, no logran encontrarse en persona. Historia cargada de un final totalmente mordaz e inesperado.
