This is my fourth Seth book, and I am excited to say that measurable changes have occurred in my life: I stopped eating anything that could look at me with eyes, I stopped drinking alcohol forever, and I love my dreams. Now, that I know I am creating my dreams— rather than being a victim to them, I can direct them in any way I choose; which is also trickling into my physical world.

And if this was not enough, I created a virtual city!! This idea is suggested to enhance our physical experience, by opening us up to an "Invisible Reality," which exists all around us, but we cannot see it yet. This Virtual City, though "invisible" is just as real as our physical one,... in the psyche.

Seth gave directions: Create the city in a specific location, like a satellite above Earth. It was fun for me, because it allowed me to mentally create the world as I would have it be, and then draw on it's energy and those visiting it to support "physical reality".

I decided to create a city for my son, as a Christmas gift, "Michael's City" I called it.

I spent 40 mental hours designing it and giving it all my focus and energy. He was a little confused by the gift, having not read any of the Seth Material, but I think he thought it was cool. I used the Higgs Field, as the energy force to create it on, which is a real energy field made up of invisible particles-- that can be in two places at once, perfect huh? I invite you to visit Michael's City...click link below.

Tom Palmer says

The Seth series is long and complicated. In conversations supposed "channeled" through Jane Roberts, the Seth personality/entity reveals his own take on metaphysical reality. The material really does twist your brain and forces it to consider new ways of looking at the world. Be prepared to throw away all you pre-existing assumptions about life and the universe. I'll tell you now, that the information will take time to absorb and process and that several readings might be in order. But over time, the books seemed to have much validity. My advice is to dive in and glean what you can at any level.
