Unrealistic but nice to read. I like the style of drawing.

Ahh.. now that they've mentioned it. Since Nao-kun and Shiharu-chan were together since they were kids.. and Shiharu-chan said she was never confessed to.. then Nao-kun really must be the reason why. XD hahaha! Seeing as he does get quite jealous and likes to ward off people just so they could spend time alone together. :)))) Aww the place where her mom and her used to live isn't there anymore. How sad. :(she wanted to live around the area atleast but since it's gone.. what will happen now?

I read this for the fluff, and possible parenting tips. Absolutely delivers, so four-five stars. (I'm not sure which of the tankobon I'd give more or less, because they are very quick reads and afterwards I have no idea what happened in which tankobon (though I do remember everything that happens), so.. I'll just rate all of them with 4 stars unless I absolutely know better.)

Sweet and slow paced, but finally a turn?

This series is ridiculously charming and heartwarming, and I loved it more and more the further I read. My only gripe with this series is that I really wanted more with Shiharu and Seiji as a couple. However, I still love the series and thought the ending was pretty great. I definitely want to add this to my personal collection. I also cannot wait to start the LIFE SO HAPPY series!

I love how the Kaede Kouchi-san has portrayed everything so clearly, and beautifully. The story, the art, the characters, their background...you warm up to them, and let them enter your lives, see them go on with life, always looking forward, and then the inevitable happens: you've let them touch your heart, and you can't help but surrender to these feelings.

Matsunaga-san, Shiharu, Akane-chan, Aoi-chan, Nao, Takeru, Rio, Oikawa...They have taken refuge in the deepest depths of my heart. I just want them to be happy and make not only just right choices, but choices that make them happy! :'(
