Me, Myself and Him E.N. Joy

Locksie grew up in the church--against her will--thanks to her holier than thou mother. But now that she's all grown up, she's her own woman, and church is the last thing on her mind. Her live-in boyfriend, Dawson, is the first. Locksie has shared a wonderful three years with Dawson without half the drama that she hears about from the clients in the salon she manages. But lately, Locksie is beginning to feel as though something is missing from her near perfect romance. When she goes to her favorite aunt, Mary, for some guidance, she doesn't like the direction her aunt is trying to steer her in. Locksie quickly realizes, though, that she can run from her problems, but she can't hide from the truth.

Hannah is one of Locksie's faithful clients who tries to offer her some advice, but Hannah's got issues of her own. She's struggling to forgive her husband for cheating, all while being a stepmother to the child who was a result of his affair. The child's mother taunts Hannah every chance she gets.

In Me, Myself and Him, these women are torn between holding on to the men they love, or having to let go for the one thing that's missing from their lives.

Me myself and Him

Took me almost half way to emerge myself in the story... but still gave it 5stars for it to be Christian fiction. My first time reading from this author and can see myself reading more.

A pretty good storyline about 2 different women and their walk in Christianity. Most of us can see ourselves in Locksie when the spirit hits you and you still trying to fight it, what a battle within. And as far as her friend Hannah the Spirit hits her not when she wanted it to but just when she needed it. Can't say the book was predictable which is why I bumped it up to 5 stars from 4 ocksie, a hairdresser, is living in sin with her boyfriend Dawson. Dawson is a personal trainer at the gym, and he's the first man with whom she's ever had intercourse. Locksie has been feeling guilty about her relationship with Dawson and her saved Aunt Mary tells her that she needs to develop a relationship with Jesus – her guilt stems from the sin that she's committing.

The novel dealt with a cast of realistic characters with realistic issues. You have Drake, Dawson's brother, who's a saved man who has a deep relationship with Jesus Christ. Dawson finds himself lusting after another man's wife and he prays, wanting God to forgive him and lift his unhealthy desire.

There's also Hannah, who is married to Elkan. Hannah is a light-skinned Black woman, she's so light that people think she's a White woman. Hannah has issues in her marriage because Elkan cheated on her, and had a baby by his one-time mistress. This distresses Hannah since she's unable to conceive.

This story reminded me of a soap opera, a soap opera with a Christian message. This novel was full of drama and snappy, realistic dialogue, and it showed realistic characters struggling with realistic issues that affect their faith journeys. It was a highly engaging read and I look forward to reading more novels by this author.

Sometimes we have to be willing to give up something/someone we really love if God says so! Do you have the faith and the will to give it up? Is your love for man stronger than your love for God? I should hope not!

GOD aint into threesomes

This is my first Urban Christian book, and I am very pleased to say I could not have picked a better one to start with. Author E.N. Joy really kept me captivated in the novel. She had me feeling as if Locksie's struggles were my own.

Meet Locksie, a young woman with a live in boyfriend Dawson. They have a love that is so strong and unconditional, that it should be the envy of others in a struggling relationship or single person. Things start to change when Locksie starts to have an internal struggle. Unable to shake the feelings that are causing problems in her relationship, they both seek advice. Locksie from her Christian Aunt Mary, who after many talks finally gets her to commit to going to church with her. Locksie is no stranger to church as she grew up in the church with her overbearing Christian mother. Her mother's ways and views on church have left a bad taste in Locksie's mouth to say the least.

Dawson is a handsome young man with a good head on his shoulder. His love for Locksie is evident in all he does. His problem is he doesn't know how to handle this change going on with her. The person he goes to for advice is his younger brother Drake. Low and Behold, Drake is also a Christian leaving Dawson feeling as if he is getting the "holier than thou" from every angle.

Hannah is an acquaintance of Locksie's, whom is dealing with the fact that her husband has done the unforgivable. He went out and had an affair with Peni which resulted in the birth of a child. Now Peni is the most self-centered person around and has lots of fun taunting Hannah with the fact that she has not been able to give her own husband a child.

Through events that take place in this fast moving novel, Hannah and Locksie deal with trials and tribulations that make them share a bond, they become real friends and share a sisterhood.

Praises to E.N. Joy for making me a believer that an Urban Christian book can be just as enjoyable as the typical urban book that I love to read. Me, Myself and Him did not lack for the story line I was looking for. This book has a great story of the struggle between right and wrong. It also has the deceit, underhanded ways of people in general, the trust issues, the cheating, the character Peni you will love to hate, and of course some shockers had me yelling at the book "what in God's name are you doing?".

E.N. Joy keep up the great work and I looking forward to reading your next Urban Christian book.

This was my first book by the Mrs. Joy and I truly enjoyed it. It was also an eye opener. I can read this book over and over again. I love books that have a lesson. I cannot wait to read more books by the author.

There are so many highlighted points derived in this book:
Think about what your gravestone will read? What did you do during the dash (after you were born and before you died)!

Think about those who come back to the church after living in their sin and how there are members who are condemning-judgmental without knowing anything about this person, or stiff-necked people with slick mouths. Sadly, when I was a child to young adult growing up in the Baptist Church, I recall some of these same issues like the ushers will not allow you to sit where you want, or asking someone to move over get all snotty-nose and smart-alecky or flaky, and also would not allow you to go inside during prayer. Yes, I honorably respect now since then but how some on duty act all snooty.

How we face fleshly issues even in the body of Christ, vs. the sinner who has accepted this lifestyle until otherwise. I shared some of these passages in my God is in the Equation or Dream Your Reality Prophecies Facebook groups with members to think about or consider in their walk with GOD. Soon I need to get a copy on my shelf! Thank you E.N. Joy.
