I know that is book took me a bit longer to finish but not really I did finish this book on The 10th but I wasn't able to update my progress.

But all in all this book was truly a delight it was truly perfect for the week of Valentine's day. I love Lynn Kurland and the rest of the great authors that was joined with this author.

I love reading the rest of the short stories that was along side Opposites Attract. They all were really great and well added.

For each start they were very different and not once did it feel repaid but told different really.

Of course my favorite story is Opposites Attract that was super cute. I did really enjoy how Kurland was able to fit everything extremely well really it didn't feel like a short story it felt well written. Like you would see their life all the way, You love how much they were different yet they fit each other very well at the same times. It was great balance for the both of them.

I love along the stories every other story suited themselves very well you love every character from story to story. And since this was my first time reading something like this it was very enjoyable really. I think it's a great way to meet more authors and new types of stories that come along side each other.

I believe that is book is really great for all ages really. It's great for any time even for the week of Valentine's or just the month of February.

So far I've only read Lynn Kurland's story and I absolutely loved it! Sam and Sydney are wonderful characters, I just wish I could have spent 400 or so more pages with them! ;)

I am glad to be rid of this book. It is a very general, sappy, and overused collection of short stories. Man meets Woman, the two share physical feelings towards each other, and suppress them for most of the story, until they "fall in love" and get married. I felt like this plot line was the same with each story. The one even was told partially from the dogs' perspective! To conclude, lots of fluff and a lot like a fan-fiction you can read online.

A short story about Sydney and Sam MacLeod that takes place in recent time and is clean. I only read this one.

Sarah says

I only read the Kurland, which was silly and sweet and cozy as always.

Four short stories by four different authors. "The Icing on the Cake", by Lynn Kurland, "The Short Hot Summer" by Elizabeth Beverly, "Pride & Prejudice" (sic) by Emily Carmichael and "The Princess and the Adventurer" by Elda Minger. All romances, which end rather quickly and predictably. "The Short Hot Summer" was taken from a longer romance by Elizabeth Beverly. As one reviewer said, good for a quick summer read or for Valentine's Day. Somewhat interesting.

This is supposed to be #5 of a series of time traveling knights. Sorry to disappoint you, but there are no knights, time travel or anything else to make it #5 in the series. This is an OK contemporary romance. I bought the whole series but this one could easily be skipped. It is not part of the storyline at all. I was very disappointed and DO NOT recommend. 2.5

Okay, message to Lynn Kurland: enough anthologies and if you're going to write a time travel series there should be some time travel involved in the storyline.

The Icing on the Cake by Lynn Kurland was a cute story, supposed to be #5 in her MacLeod's series, no time travel.

This book also included:

The Short, Hot Summer by Elizabeth Bevarly,
Pride and Prejudice by Emily Carmichael,
the Princess and the Adventurer by Elda Minger

All the stories were good, none involved time travel.

PB-B @ 7/2000, 1/02. MacLeod/McKinnon Book 5. Anthology. Lynn Kurland, Icing on the Cake, Alaska, Male cake decorator, female guide. Elizabeth Bevarly, The Short Hot Summer, NY businessman and B & B owner in hot south. Emily Carmichael, Pride and Prejudice, Dog shows in Chicago working dog owner against show dog owner. Elda Minger, The Princess and the Adventurer, A woman journeys to Mexico to look for lost brother and the guide falls in love with her. Okay.

This is a collection of four stories all by different authors. It was quite good. I enjoyed the Lynn Kurland very much.

This was such a cute short story! (I only read the Lynn Kurland one....will read the others eventually) I think this was the first Lynn Kurland book that was just about two, current day people. Yes, they were from the same families she normally writes about (MacLeod, in this case), but there was no time travel, no history, no knights, etc. Not even any Europe. It was set in a small town in Alaska, so I sort of thought I wasn't going to like it. But I actually really loved it! It was just about two people meeting and making a connection, and falling in love. What's not to like?? And I loved the forced living conditions -- that always makes it more romantic. It's a cold, snowy winter in the woods, two people alone in a cabin, cozy fires, blankets on the couch, cooking together -- super good setup for some romance! What a sweet, romantic short story about people changing and wanting to grow because they think they should be "more" for the person they're falling in love with, only to find out that the other one loved them for who they already were. Totally recommend!

Not very impressed with this one. No Scotland, No Medieval lairds, No time travel... I'm just wondering how this fits in with all the other books at all...

Samuel MacLeod & Sidney Kincaid
