Is it destiny?

Is it strength?

Or is it luck that controls one's path.

Wang Guo, a young adult from Earth, died in an unfortunate accident.

However, his journey didn't end there as a heaven-defying system fused with him and tunneled his soul through countless worlds before landing it on the perfect body. The body belonged to a youngster, who got unjustifiably killed, leaving his helpless sister behind to survive in a cruel world.

From here Wang Guo continued his journey while controlling his destiny, achieving strength and ruling luck in order-

To be the king of array masters.

To be the king of the blacksmiths.

Where to begin

The story read like a textbook, but nothing made sense. There was no flow at all in the story and everything that happens has no reason for it. The very first introduction of the character makes you despise him and completely dislike it first sign of Misfortune he runs into you almost want to cheer for it.
