[Siren Everlasting Classic ManLove: Erotic Alternative Consensual BDSM Romance, M/M, sex toys, HEA]

Jacob Lyndhurst has wanted Brian Jenkins as his sub since first laying eyes on the man at Michelson's Inc. The only problem with that plan was that Taylor McKinley fired the guy. When he and his power circle of friends have dinner at a very high-end restaurant, Jacob sees an opportunity to have his cake and eat it too when Brian turns out to be his server.

Brian is shocked when he spots Jacob, the man of his dreams, sitting at table three. Not only does the man have arresting good looks, he oozes sexual tension. And that is exactly why Brian should stay the hell away from him. Now, only if the powerful Dom didn't intrigue him so much.

When Jacob is relentless in pursuing him, Brian's curiosity is piqued. He gives one night to the man of his dreams and his world is no longer his own. But someone is out to sabotage Brian and is hell-bent on getting him fired from his new job.

When Brian runs away from the one man who pushes his boundaries beyond their limits, Jacob must decide whether to chase after him, or cut his losses and give up the one man that he knows is his perfect sub.

Serena Yates says

Another 'Brat in Training' story, this one is as entertaining as the first one, but in a different way. Less openly humorous than the first story, in fact with a lot of angst and anxiety toward the end, most of the story still made me smile. There is just something about an incurably clumsy guy being accepted despite his issues that makes me happy. And in another twist, the 'bad guy' gets his comeuppance here as well.

Brian is not doing too well. His clumsiness and the fact he is prone to 'accidents' already got him fired from Jacob's company. Now that Jacob appears at his uncle's restaurant where he works as a waiter makes him extremely nervous. Which, of course, increases his clumsiness...

Jacob is a great Dom. For him, it's all about sensation and about helping Brian relax and getting him to trust that Jacob has his best interests at heart. He deals with Jacob's enemies extremely well, even if it does get him into trouble. I loved that he stood up for Brian like that.

If you like to be entertained by a bit of kink and some interesting rope play, you may like this story.

What Jacob did to Brian at the restaurant called sexual harassment. That jerk has to be at prison, not enjoying his HEA.

Short but nice and exciting, Jason seem the Dom ideal as Brian is a sub.

Jacob Lyndhurst has wanted Brian Jenkins as his sub since he started working at Michelson's Inc. Unfortunately his best friend, Taylor McKinley, fires him so he thinks his shot with Brian Jenkins is gone. When Jacob and his friends are having dinner at an upscale restaurant, Jacob's waiter turns out to be Brian. Jacob is not going to let him get away twice.

Brian is shocked when Jacob shows an interest in him. At first he just thinks the man of his dreams is playing with him. When he realizes Jacob is serious, he can't say no to him. When Brian is in trouble at work and with his co-workers, will he trust Jacob to help him? Or will he run from his Dom forever?

Brian's Boundaries by Lynn Hagen, the second book in the Brats in Training series, is a short but erotic story where we get to meet Jacob, a strong Dom. He has a very gentle way of domination which I found to be very different but welcome. Brian, who can make a mistake happen without even trying, is sweet and quiet. I liked his sweet insecurities; to me it makes him very human.

This isn't your typical BDSM book; it's more of a BDSM light book. There are no heavy domination scenes or really intense scenes like I have come to expect in a BDSM book. I like the change of pace, though it was lighter than the norm. I think it shows how talented a writer Ms. Hagen is to be able to write such a sweet BDSM story which is believable and makes me want more. I will definitely be looking for more Brats in Training and the men who love them.

I like it better than book one for sure.

Teetee says

Lame. Lots of assumptions on the part of the Dom. No kissing! Sub runs away from Dom without talking out problems; 'i'll leave you before you get a chance to dump me'.
