Do you believe in ghosts? Jerry doesn't.

He's a nineteen-year-old American, who just wants a good holiday with his friend, Brad. They are travelling round the north of England by bicycle. But stranger things begin to happen in the small hotel where they are staying.

First, Brad seems to think that he has been there before. and then a girl called Ellen appears . . .

The first of these three original plays is set in the seventeenth century, and the other two take place in modern times. In each play, a ghost comes back from the dead to change the lives of living people.

It seems like the majority of people really enjoying this book, but not me. Reading the plot summary on the back cover of this book, I was kinda excited to see what was really in those 3 plays. However, upon reading the plays, I felt kind flat. The ideas of those plays are good, but the way they were executed was kinda rushed, and somehow nonsense and unrealistic to me. I just wish the author would have taken more time to explore and leverage the idea, and made them emotionally deeper. Overall, these 3 plays left nothing in me except ridiculousness, but I gave them 2 stars for their great ideas.

Ghost, love, hotel, witch, court, prison, life

"Yes. I'm dead. And you kill me. But I'm not going away. I'm staying here, in prison with you."

These stories are about Ghost, but they are not horror story. One is about a woman who became ghost to looks for her husband. It's a kind of wonderful love story. By Japanese customs, we think dead people come back from heaven to meet their families in the middle of August. It's called "Bon". For this custom, I feel this story is little familiar.

b) The reason I like this passage is because, I like the rhythm and it looks slogan of something.
5. Before reading, I thought this story is a horror story but it was not. This story was written like a script, so it was easy to read. The ghost is afraid by some people but I think it don't need.
By the way, I don't believe the ghost but if I can see the ghost, I want to meet my grandmother and talk with her. Only I can see the ghost, it may be near me...
