Second to None Felice Stevens

Nightclub owner Marcus Feldman never met a man he didn't love, at least for the night. Although his best friends have all found love, Marcus shuns their advice to commit to one man and settle down. His past has taught him monogamy and marriage is for fools, and Marcus is anything but a fool.

Tyler Reiss's dream of dancing professionally is unexpectedly cut short and replaced by a different kind of love. He trades in his ballet slippers for go go boots, and spends his nights dancing at the hottest gay club in the city. Flirting with the customers for tips is easy, but resisting the dark and sexy Marcus is becoming harder to do with each passing day.

Unforeseen circumstances bring Marcus and Tyler closer and though they give in to their mutual passion, both still struggle to guard their hearts. When crises threaten, Tyler and Marcus find their strength in each other rather than falling apart. Tyler must choose to either run, or stay and fight for the life he wants, while Marcus realizes that love doesn't mean losing himself and opens his heart, making him a better man in the end.

~ 5 amazing dancing stars ! ~

"Love was inescapable, indefinable, and sometimes ill-advised. It took you by the throat and shook you until your brain rattled, yet just as gently, cradled you in its loving arms."

Loved this book so hard ! Loved Marcus and Tyler even more!
And they're become my new favorite couple along with my Micah and Josh.
Another winner from Felice Stevens !

Once upon a time, I was stumble to a new book from a new author in MM. Book called Rescued . It was a good book and after that, I stalked the author's every new book. None of her book I haven't read. I read all of Felice's stories, because I loved all of her MCs.

Some people might now know her, yet. But I believe I have a good taste in books, so, it's your lost if you haven't read Felice's books.

(I'm trying not to sound like an ass-licker here, but seriously, if Felice keeping up with her writing style I love, I'll follow her everywhere). Enough.

Now about the book.

Right from the start with Julian and Nick's book, I was already half in love with that slutty Marcus. Hell, I never like a slutty heroes before, but Marcus dug my curiosity and I keep wondering who can tame him in the future.

Funny how faith drive us. We're looking everywhere to our soulmates, and never realised that he's right there close to us. Like Marcus when he found Tyler, a new dancer in his new club.

But Tyler is not an easy target, he's not even Marcus's one night only type.

First encounter was a fist (yeah, seemed like Marcus has a thing with a little jab on his jaw). Tyler got him right there.

"“You may be my boss and pay me , but that’s as far as it goes. I don’t have to like you, or put up with your crap like everyone else here does.”"

Curiosity kill a cat. Nah, not for Marcus, he's determined like that. He wanted Tyler and he MUST have Tyler. But what's Tyler told him?

"“I don’t need your help, and no, we won’t get to know each other better. You’re my boss, and you pay me to work for you. That doesn’t include fucking me.”"

Ouch !

Marcus never wanted to fall in love. He didn't need it. As a child, he's lack of that. And he became a bitter man.

"“I didn't want trips to places that weren't for children or toys that were too expensive to play with. I wanted parents who wanted me.”"

"He didn't know how to love anyone, not like his friends loved their partners. He'd seen Julian give himself to Nick and Zach to Sam so completely, and it scared the shit out of him to lose that control, to put someone else first."

And it's so hard for him to admit that he wanted Tyler. He didn't understand why.

"“Why are you here?”

“I have no fucking clue, but I have to find out.”

“Find out what?”

“I don't know.” “Why you let other men touch and kiss you, but me you push away.” “Why it matters to me.”"

I'm glad Tyler didn't give up too soon for Marcus's undeniable charm, Marcus had to work hard for that, including prolonged his three months bet of celibacy to eight long months of no sex.

But it pays, because Tyler wanted him as much as he wanted Tyler. And Tyler make sure that 'everybody' knows about that!

"“I'm going to make certain that when you leave here tonight, there will be no doubt in anyone's mind who you belong with from now on.”

As long as I know, there's only two dances that I found erotic AF. One, from my latest Lori Witt's book, and this one. Tyler is one hell of a hot dancer!

And there are also my other guys from the other series, my Micah and Josh !

Not just as cameo, they're helping Tyler and Marcus solved some of their life problems as well ! <3

And I I love how a man of no relationship, no need family like Marcus, falls head over heels over a little girl named Lillie. Aww !

Seriously, I don't care about Marcus's past hurts with his parents, as long as Tyler can make him whole.

"“I don't want to leave because I need you.” He pressed a clumsy kiss to the corner of Marcus's mouth. “I love you.” Marcus stilled and held Tyler a bit closer. “Do you know that's the first time anyone's ever said that to me?”"

IMHO, Felice is getting better and better with her writing. And I haven't let down even once.

Loved all the boys, and I'm sure there are many more to come . Bring it on Felice !

Extra points given to Lillie, for being the lovely little girl who gave the big guys something special to bond over. Less 1 star (sorry) because I didn't want it to end so soon....

I'm honestly surprised this book has such a high rating... when will people understand that no means no and repeatedly forcing yourself into someone's space & making decisions for another person without their permission (and, in fact, with their direct objection) is not cool or acceptable at all!!!

Denise - Shh Mom's Reading® says

Second to None <http://amzn.to/1nyDwXb> is easy read standalone though it may be more fun witnessing Marcus fall hard if you have been seen him throughout the series.

And lines like this will mean so much more:

“One day you'll meet someone who'll set your world spinning, and you won't know how to stop it.”

Second to None is the story of nightclub owner Marcus Feldman and Tyler Reiss a man who has recently become an employee at Marcus' club Sparks.

The reason why Tyler is shaking his ass at Sparks, will touch your heart. You will understand why he gave up his dream for a paycheck, well for tips, lots of tips, thrown at him, pushed down his shorts.

Tyler and Marcus have engaging banter from the moment they meet.

“You can't take over my life, Marcus; you don't own me.” “Trust me, when I do own you, you're going to know it.”

The plot of this one brings new characters to love. Lillie brought so much to this story... yes I know a female in a gay romance no it's not menage trust me it works!

Tyler doesn't put up with Marcus' crap and I love that.. as they two grow closer I loved them together even more

“I don't belong there. Those are your friends, the people you're closest with.” “I had my dick inside you twice last night, Tyler. How much closer could we get?”

.....“Come on; you have to help me out here. They’re all coupled up, and the last thing I want is to listen to them be all disgustingly loving and happy.”

An amused glint lit Taylor’s eyes. “And you hate that, huh?” “Bet that sweet ass of yours I do.”

As this story develops the plot layers with characters from Ms Stevens prior books. I adored the use of Micah from Memories of the Heart <http://amzn.to/1KFJs5A> (if you haven’t read this one I highly recommend it). Ms Stevens weaves in his doctor and his family to create added depth to this story.

The story of how Marcus and Tyler become a family warmed my heart; it was hot, emotional and had me knowing these men were better off for having found each other.

Ms Stevens thank you so much for this wonderful series, I loved witnessing these men fall in love and grow their families!

Amanda says

Reading a Felice Steven's book is like having my favorite mug of hot chocolate. You just knew you gonna have the sweetness and the warmth.

We have met Marcus since Beyond the Surface. He is the manwhore among the trio and totally allergic towards love and fluff. Now that both his best friends Julian and Zach all settled down with their respective partners, they keep pestering him to grow up and settle down.

Tyler dreamed of being a broadway dancer, but life threw him a curveball and he ended up being a dancer at Marcus nightclub in order to earn enough of tips to care for his 4 year old niece, Lillie. He heard enough of his boss wild lifestyle that he automatically put up a strong barricade from all his flirtatious attempt.

Never one to beg for scraps, Marcus is more than willing to put Tyler into the back burner and get on with someone else instead. But when Tyler was injured at his work place, Marcus surprised himself by getting all involved and protective for the man who aren't even interested in him.

Love, relationship and a little girl? We get to see how Marcus's life turned upside down before his own eyes, simply because of Tyler. For a man who once shunned love, Marcus is doing damn fine embracing his uncertain future.

I kept waiting for the moment that Marcus might screw something up. But true to Felice's nature, she is never one to torture her readers with unnecessary angst. So I appreciate the fact that we get to see Marcus growth as a responsible man without all the bullshit of hiding himself. I'm so proud of you, man.

Julian and Zach of course was having a good laugh at his expense. 'Never say never, my friend'.

Jaime says

"Love, Marcus decided, seeing Tyler pressed between two men as he danced, was for the weak. Lucky for him, he was strong and focused."

This is Marcus' book, finally we get to see inside the head of the infamous playboy of our three friends who make up The Breakfast Club! I have been waiting for this story because I knew that when Marcus met his match the boy was going to fall hard! Try as he might, it happened before he even realized what happened. Felice Stevens created the perfect counterpart to Marcus, Tyler - he is strong willed, not afraid to do anything to survive, compassionate, and he is not about to be some rich guys next trick! Tyler is working at Marcus' club as a male go-go dancer to strum up business and while he flirts with the customers it's the owner of the club who has him in his sights! From almost the first day, Tyler has Marcus wrapped around his finger. Once Marcus starts developing feelings (even if he doesn't recognize them) he goes into total Papa bear mode wanting to protect and care for Tyler.

"You can't take over my life, Marcus; you don't own me." "Trust me, when I do own you, you're going to know it." You see, Tyler has some secrets of his own and he is very protective of these secrets. Marcus soon finds out that Tyler isn't such an easy man to persuade to see things his way.

Meanwhile, life goes on all around Marcus and his friends can't believe what they are witnessing. Could the Marcus Feldman be falling in love? Would he admit it, if asked? Probably not..so Julian gently nudges him to recognize his feelings.

"One day you'll meet someone who'll set your world spinning, and you won't know how to stop it."

When Julian tells Marcus this, and not for the first time, Marcus blows him off stating that he won't ever fall in love and his world is just fine how it is. Tyler on the other hand doesn't want to be someone's one night stand he has too much riding on the line and he refuses to be that guy. When Tyler reveals his secrets to Marcus, it surprises both Marcus and Tyler that Marcus doesn't run...this may be what starts to soften Tyler's heart toward Marcus. That and the insane sexual tension developing between them.

I loved this book, the back and forth between Marcus and Tyler and the underlying chemistry before they actually hooked up was amazing, then add in the between the sheets chemistry and we have an explosive book!! Felice Stevens definitely ended this series with a huge bang and now I will have a book hangover and miss my Breakfast Club men!! I have faith though that Felice will find a way to sprinkle them in the backdrop of an upcoming book just as we got to see characters from other books in this one - all I can hope for is that the next book comes soon!!

5+ Stars to Second to None and 5 stars to the entire series!! A highly recommended read!!

Der letzte Band um drei Freunde ist ein würdiger Abschluss für diese Trilogie, denn auch Marcus hat eine tolle Geschichte bekommen.

Dabei ist er nun wahrlich kein Sympathieträger. Durch seine ständige Schauspielerei und das Verleugnen von sich selbst, macht er es nicht gerade einfach, ihn zu mögen. Er kann sich wunderbar selbst belügen und das bekommt auch Tyler schmerzhaft zu spüren, der für solche Spielerchen nun wahrlich keinen Nerv hat, denn er muss Geld verdienen, um sich und seine kleine Nichte durchzubringen. Und auch wenn er Marcus anziehend findet, will er sich nicht mit einem Gigolo einlassen, dem es nur um die nächste Kerbe im Bettpfosten geht.

Beide haben ihre Vorurteile dem anderen gegenüber und das ist nicht verwunderlich, da auch Tyler alles versucht, um eine Maske aufrecht zu erhalten.

Gott sei Dank hat Marcus Freunde, die ihn wieder und wieder in Tylers Richtung stoßen und ihm vor allem Denkanstöße geben, die er dringend braucht, um hinter Tylers Fassade zu blicken und vor allem, um zu erkennen, dass er kurz davor steht, den größten Fehler seines Lebens zu machen.

Eine tolle Geschichte, die von mir volle Punkzahl und eine dicke Leseempfehlung erhält.

Review originally posted at Sinfully.

Marcus is the last single man in his group of friends and is happy to stay that way. He's been there supporting them throughout their ups and downs and now he feels them trying to push him to change his ways and find someone just like they have. Deep down Marcus is sad and lonely, but he won't admit to himself and certainly won't concede that his friends are right.

Horrible parenting doesn't come close to describing Marcus' upbringing. Marcus' cold, homophobic father is an awful, self-centered man and his mother is living in a fantasy world that revolves around making his cheating father happy, something she has pushed Marcus aside to do for his entire life. The fact that even his own parents never loved or wanted him has cemented the idea that no one else will put him first, so he's got to do it for himself. He is happy to have his pick of a never ending supply of willing men approach him each night at his club. Giving all of himself to one person so completely, putting them before himself, like both Julian and Zach had done with Nick and Sam, is not something Marcus ever plans to do.

Tyler is a new dancer at Sparks and isn't going to play Marcus' games. He knows the man's reputation and has always made it a point, to the detriment of his dreams, not to trade sex for advancement of his career. Although he's heard about Marcus being very good to his staff and friends, Tyler can't see beyond the cavalier manwhore. Not that he has any career aspirations left at the moment, doing what his responsibilities require him to do and working for tips as a go-go dancer. Tyler's had a tough time of things and the last thing Tyler wants is to be anyone's charity case or Marcus' latest conquest. Unfortunately for Tyler, Marcus seems to enjoy the challenge he presents and Marcus isn't going to let him go so easily, even when it turns out that getting close to Tyler comes with more than Marcus ever bargained for.

Surprisingly, it took me a while to warm up to Tyler. He did not make a good first impression and I was actually thinking he was lucky Marcus didn't fire him on more than one occasion. Whether that was due to Marcus knowing that he comes on strong, Tyler being beautiful and talented or just Marcus being a good guy underneath the lecherous playboy exterior, he puts up with a lot from Tyler as a new employee. They have great chemistry from the get-go, both when they are butting heads and during the slow build to their relationship. Things really heat up though when the relationship gets physical and it turns out the Tyler also has a bossy, toppy side to him.

There isn't just the two men fighting their attraction to each other, they are also fighting the ingrained voices in their heads that tell them that they are not worthy or that love, in general is a bad idea. It takes a while but Tyler manages to unearth a vulnerable side of Marcus that even his closest friends haven't seen and Marcus manages to get Tyler to lean on him for support. There were a few times where I did think these two spent too much time in their heads, but overall I thought they were a great couple, with Tyler really giving Marcus a run for his money. When Marcus finally falls it's a beautiful thing to see.

Marcus and Tyler face quite a few bumps in the road from outside sources, but it doesn't get too angsty or dramatic and the situations only served to bring the two men closer to understanding each other. Of course the rest of the men from the series are there to support, irritate and advise them, while a few other of Felice Stevens' beloved characters lend a hand as well. This is a fine ending to the series, but as fans of the author know, it's probably not the last we will be seeing of any of these men!

Lisa Cullinan says

Five Lillie-bugs for Marcus & Tyler

I couldn't wait for Marcus's story seeing as he's the man-slut of the bunch. Yet, I always felt that there was more to him than just his lascivious reputation.

After watching his two best friends find love and happiness, and as much as he was happy for them, Marcus vowed that he'd never let that happen to him; monogamy and relationships? No way. Since he was the owner of Sparks, one of NYC's hottest clubs, he had no problem finding the next warm body waiting to indulge him.

As much as Marcus exuded arrogance, confidence, and overbearance, he found himself floundering in uncharted waters as he tried to pursue Tyler, the club's newest dancer. Tyler, on the other hand, who'd been dealt a most unfortunate hand, watched his dreams of professionally dancing come to an abrupt halt. The last thing he needed or wanted, was Marcus — maybe ...

What Marcus hadn't counted on was that everything in his perfect world would never be the same again — Tyler and his little four year old niece, Lillie, had ruined everything for him. How dare they'd made him see that life wasn't all about him, that it was ok to wear sparkly nail polish and buy dolls, to put trust in someone else and not have them let you down, to make you feel that you are worthy of love and that you matter.

"I don't want to leave because I need you." He pressed a clumsy kiss to the corner of Marcus's mouth. "I love you." Marcus stilled and held Tyler a bit closer. "Do you know that's the first time anyone's ever said that to me?" The joking tone had vanished.

Right there, I wanted to die. Learning Marcus's story explained everything. Coming to terms with his painful past was almost as profound as watching him turn from a "me" to a "we" with so much desire to embrace "their" future.

Tyler and Marcus were made for each other. They both were so deserving of a HEA. I love how the rest of the breakfast club are involved in each other's lives and only want the best for one another. Felice Stevens knocked this one right outta center field. Her writing is always filled with so much passion, characters that are sexy and lovable, impeccable grammar, and fabulous attention to detail — all of which made this a five, Lillie-bug star, read for me.

Wendy says

This was an oke read for me, but I wasn't wowed by it.

I've only read book 1 of this series and seeing as this is book 3, this one can be read as a stand alone. Book 1 is also where I was first introduced to Marcus and he seemed like an interesting character to me.

Marcus is the owner of a nightclub. He liked to enjoy life. He has the money and he has plenty of men. He's not looking for a relationship and seeing his two best friends being all lovy dovy with their partners makes him want to puke a little. His friends try to get him to see things differently...saying he would be happier if he found the one...Marcus doesn't believe in "the one", his parents fucked him up pretty bad. He wasn't however prepared for Tyler to storm into his life and blow all his believes away.

Tyler is working as a go-go dancer in a nightclub. His dreams of being a professional ballet dancer were pushed aside when he became the caregiver of his little 4 year old niece. Now all that's important is making enough money to provide for her. He knows all about Marcus and his ways and eventhough he is physically attracted to the man, he doesn't want to be a notch on this guys bed. So he tries to stay clear and pushes Marcus away. But when something horrible happens....Marcus is the only one willing to help him out.

Now, like I said this was an oke read, but for some reason I just couldn't feel a connection with the characters, between the characters and the storyline.

I actually liked Marcus and the little kid, but the rest of the characters did nothing for me...well that's a lie. They pissed me off. Zach and Julian just kept trying to convince Marcus that he should look for something more, I got so tired of them pushing Marcus. The man is an adult, let him make his own damn decisions about what he wants. Also Tyler...I really didn't like him. He made up his mind about Marcus, before he even met the guy. He also kept whining about not wanting to be a kept man and that Marcus should stop spening money on him, but all the while Marcus was taking care him, when no one else would have. Maybe he should have been a little bit more gratefull instead of being a whiny bitch. I just couldn't get over, how he reacted in the beginning of the book and to me, he didn't change all that much. He just kept getting on my nerves...

A lot of people seem to love this book, so please don't let my opinion stop you from reading this one. It could be a big old case of "it's me and not the book". I'm going to give this book 3 stars, because I actually liked Marcus and the little kid was sweet. The steam wasn't bad either ;)

I really liked this one. Marcus and blindsided by Tyler - lust at first sight. But then he gets to know him a little more and he wants to protect him. Whaaaaa? Where is that selfish, self-indulgent, live in the moment Marcus??? Hahaha. Tyler is guarded and tired. He's taken on way more responsibility than the thought he'd have to, but he can't do anything else.

These two proud, guarded men somehow manage to break through each other's barriers - much to the amusement of Marcus's friends :) It's certainly not all easy sailing but it's nice to watch the cracks in the facade and then see the true Marcus come out to play.

Very enjoyable and satisfying read.

Mirjana DTR - Down to Read says

3.999999 Stars**

Maybe the greatest happiness wasn't the rush he'd get from sleeping with a different man each night, but instead it was waking up to the sleepy morning smile of the person you'd been dreaming of.

Right from his introduction I had a feeling that Marcus was going to be my favorite of the bunch....and boy was I right.

Marcus is the wealthy owner of the popular gay nightclub, Sparks. He loves his best friends Julian and Zach, but doesn't share their feelings when it comes to relationships. In his eyes, a relationship should only last as long as it takes you to finish your orgasm. He wants what he wants, when he wants it. He doesn't have any desire to factor anyone else into his life.

Tyler is a new dancer at Sparks. His lifelong dream was to become a professional dancer and make it on Broadway. However, life unexpectedly left him with more responsibilities than he had planned for at this stage in his life. He gave up his dream to do the right thing. Auditions, fighting for roles and touring with a dance company didn't have room in his life anymore.

Marcus is intrigued by Tyler. He's mesmerized by his dancing and his head-scratching denial of Marcus's flirting. Marcus is not used to hearing "no" from men. Tyler wants nothing to do with the wealthy and arrogant club owner. He's seen his type a million times before and he doesn't want anything to do with someone walking around on a power trip.

But when Tyler ends up in a bad situation, Marcus steps in to help the man that's gotten under his skin. Tyler knows he needs the help, but he refuses to owe anyone anything. Survival and desperation sway Tyler's decision and he takes Marcus up on his offer. Can these two men find a way to move past their own prideful issues and insecurities and realize that their preconceived notions of each other were completely off base? Can Tyler and Marcus realize that being in a relationship doesn't make you weak, but rather gives you added strength and support?

Love was the culprit; the enemy of independence and self-reliance.

Since meeting Marcus in the first book and seeing his jaded view of love and relationships, I just knew that I'd love watching this man's transformation. If there's one thing I'm a sucker for in my romance books, it's watching a stubborn and arrogant man evolve, bend and soften at the wonder of love.

Marcus grew up a neglected and lonely child, witnessing the obsessive infatuation of his mother and the cold and selfish betrayal of his father. Marcus's mother didn't have time to be a mother as she was too busy trying to be the perfect wife, while his father didn't have time for his family as he was too busy frolicking with women half his age. Marcus vowed as an adult he would never allow love to make him weak like his mother or become as selfish as his father. He would live life on his terms without having to worry about someone else's feelings. He only took men to bed that were in it for a good time and understood that "one and done" was the way that Marcus rolled.

Growing up in a home where he was nothing but an afterthought, an unwanted child, he'd make certain that as an adult he'd always be his own first priority.

Marcus's entire childhood had been spent attempting to please people who honestly didn't care; he could've stood on his head and recited the alphabet backward without any notice from his father and an indifferent shrug from his mother. That apathy had shaped him into the man he'd become. Ruthless, cold and self-indulgent.

Marcus kept that part of himself completely closed off....even from his best friends. He didn't want or need anyone's pity or sympathy. Until Tyler. Something about Tyler's resolve and pride reached out to Marcus. Tyler was selfless, yet stubborn. Giving and determined. Loving, yet distrustful. And Marcus loved the challenge of breaking down the man's walls....what he didn't know was he'd be demolishing his own as well.

Marcus sensed an iron gate clanging shut, locking Tyler away well behind unbreachable bars. Marcus knew all about those iron gates. He lived in a fucking compound.

They both hid from the world in different ways: Marcus with his flash and sarcastic wit, trading sex for companionship, while Tyler pushed people away, allowing mistrust and false pride to control his life, refusing genuine offers of friendship and goodwill.

In Felice Stevens' sweet and sexy way, these men found common ground. Little by little they opened up to each other and found a greater sense of self....and a well of strength to draw from. They discovered that trust, love and a true partnership makes you feel like you can conquer the world and face any obstacle in your way...it does not make you weak, needy or fully dependent on someone else. It makes you a team.

Now, I have to be honest and say that there were two reasons why I couldn't rate this one higher (which pains me because I really, really liked this book - - it's up there as one of my Felice Stevens favorites).

(1) A big part of Tyler's character is the fact that he's a dancer, yet I didn't have much connection to that part of him. This part of his character development fell flat for me. I needed more to fully understand how much dance played a part in his life. What did he go through? How far did he make it before life happened? At times it felt like a throwaway trait....almost like....hmmm, I'll make Tyler a dancer, that'll be fun....instead of really developing this part of the storyline and his true passion for the art. Just merely saying that a man moves well or has fluid grace doesn't automatically make him Baryshnikov.

(2) The beginning stages of Marcus and Tyler truly getting to know each other and slowly changing their opinions of each other happens off page. We're given a few breezy sentences describing their long talks over dinner and nights spent getting to know each other but we don't see any of that. With how much friction was between them in the beginning, the transition was too quick for me. Going from heated debates and confrontations to dinners, movies and talks over wine within a chapter left me feeling unsatisfied. I wanted to see more of the transition.

But even with these issues, I still loved the story. I truly enjoyed watching these two stubborn guys fall in love and create a family. Hands down my favorite in the series.

"From the moment I met you, you turned me upside down and made me change the way I looked at the world and at myself. You showed me I could love other people without losing who I was. You were my change, the best part of me. You turned ME into a WE."
