***** 5 I'm-in-love-with-a-psycho-and-I-don't-care Stars *****

He will be the death of me. Unless- I am the death of him

Nenia, you went all out for the final installment. Wow! I can't..I just..have no words...

Fear has a name. And his name is Gavin Mecozzi

A hunter, who can't seem to hold on to its prey.

One thing we've learned about Gavin is that you DON'T want to fuck around with him. This guy is evil. Sadistic. His games are cruel.

So when he discovers that Valerian is..very much alive, he sets out to find her. Only this time, they won't be playing games. It has become personal. And this time, she WON'T get away.

..this time he would be patient. He would bide his time and strike only when she was completely defenseless--When she had no more shields-after he had knocked them down. When she had no more pawns- after he had killed them all.

She had to die, by his hand. And his hand alone..But first- she must be made to suffer.

18 year old Valerian Kimble has been living in fear since she was 14. She had fallen victim of a hunter who wanted possession of her. Since she didn't give in, he made her life a living hell. Killing off the ones closest to her and eventually wanting to kill her. After that horrible encounter with her hunter, Gavin, all she wanted to do was get away. Far away.

When she got accepted to a university(miles away from home) she left. Leaving her loved ones behind. Cutting them out of her life one by one. Along with her old self. She changed not only her image but her name as well.

For better or for worst, Valerian Kimble was dead.

Truth is, Valerian really was dead..inside that is.

..how could you live when you were dead inside? When the spark of life inside you had all but burned to ash.

Living in fear constantly. Knowing he's still out there. Dreaming about him and the inexpiable things he could do to her, who wouldn't be anxious and freaking out constantly?

But no matter how hard Val tries to hide and get away, Gavin always finds her.

"How dare you run from me. Did you think I would let you get away?..You are mine. Your heart is mine. Your body is mine. Your flesh, and your blood-all mine."

Val is of course, defenseless. She tries to fight back but you can't win against Gavin. He is just that twisted.

"I'll take my knife..I'll carve my name in your breast so that every beat of your heart will remind you that you are mine-and mine alone"

I would rather see you destroyed than see you free or in the possession of another"

Since Fearscape, Gavin has wanted to hold possession of Val. To own her and her body. Well, he gets to finally have it!

"Scream for me, my flower"

SEXY

Frightening for Val. But fun for me lol

The hunter has caught its prey. She has fallen for his trap yet again. Only this time, there is no escaping him. He owns her now.

***

I did NOT see that ending coming.

My reaction was something like this..

I'm going to have to create a new bookshelf titled "Shocking endings" lol

Thank you so much for this incredible journey, Nenia. I enjoyed the crazy ride, which i'm planing on getting on again :)

4 ½ Terrifying Stars

This is the final installment in the Horrorscape Series. This is one dark and disturbing series but this romance lover carried on with her dreams of a hea...go figure.

Valerian has changed her name, her appearance and is attending college far away from all the horrors of her past. Gavin thinks she is dead and so for the most part our heroine is safe. She is tormented by his words, her dreams are nightmares laced with powerful sexual attraction and repulsion for her stalker.

"This wasn't living at all. Wasn't there a belief somewhere that near-death experiences left a part of your soul in the afterlife? I am the living dead. A hungry ghost."

Our main psychopath has been on a murder spree and when he realizes that Valerian is still alive...the hunt begins again.

In this book, their relationship becomes sexual because our Valerian is still trying to protect dumb friends who don't give a damn about her but blame our girl. Really the poor girl has the worst luck in friends. Anyway, Gavin's hold is strong, her grades are slipping and a copycat murder is thrown into the mix.

The story keeps a heart pounding pace while Valerian barely holds on.

"My grades...are shit. My family...thinks I'm crazy. I have...no friends. No support. No dignity." She punctuated each bit of emphasis with another squeeze. "Oh and some psycho wants to kill me. Besides you, I mean."

Gavin takes darkness to deep levels in this story all the while I conclude that he does in fact care for her. I just might be the crazy one.

The series is over and I may be screwed up but I really wanted this ending...(view spoiler)

"And when you cease to amuse me – when your leaves begin to fade – I may very well decide to prune you, the way one might deadhead a drooping rose."

Although I didn't get what I was wishing for, this story was very well written, very exciting and completely unforgettable!

"I hate chess."

**UPDATE** I cannot stop thinking about this book. Gavin especially. The last few pages plus the extra the author puts in about his family has made me love him so much more. I'm not sure Ms. Campbell wanted the reader to feel this way about him. But I do. Three days later he is still on my mind...which means the whole trilogy is going into my favorite books. I wish I could have a conversation with the author because I have SO MANY questions still.

First I feel like I have to say that I still cannot believe Nenia Campbell was only 17 years old when she wrote this book!! I never would've thought it. It's mature, scary and just plain old awesome!

This was such a great series!! Even though Gavin is a really bad guy I can't help but to root for him. Not to kill Valerian but to get her love in return. I feel guilty for wanting this even though they are fictional characters! I am so pleased I discovered Nenia Campbell's novels. She writes in a way that immediately sucks you into the story and you won't stop reading until the very end. I also own Cloak and Dagger which I'm sure I'll be getting to as soon as possible. You absolutely MUST read this series!!!

Angie **loves angst** says

"First he had ripped out her heart. Then he had shattered her mind. Now he had broken her body. Nothing left was hers, not anymore. It was all his."

The twisted, dark, mind-boggling conclusion that I've been waiting for was finally within my grasp. Even though I know it was very naive of me, and highly unlikely I really wanted this to end in an HEA. I had images in my head of Gavin attending counseling, becoming a better guy, and running off in the sunset hand in hand with Val. Well, Nenia Campbell basically said "f*ck your HEA" and she sucker punched me in the gut!

That beginning.... Can I have more of Gavin's twisted family please? I thought Gavin was sick now I have an idea of where his insanity stems from.

"Are you frightened?"

No, you're not frightened, but trust me, you should be.

After reading the two previous books in this series I felt as if I had a grasp on Gavin's special brand of twisted. I thought I knew him fairly well. He even began to grow on me, in a weird sort of scary way. At the beginning of Terrorscape Gavin realizes that his attempt to kill Val was unsuccessful. He becomes psychotically enraged and vows that the next time they meet he will complete the job. Val on the other hand tried her best to put her past behind her. She has moved away from home and changed her appearance in order to avoid Gavin's clutches, but she is still haunted by him.

"I never feel safe anymore. I can't be alone. I can't be in crowds. He's always there, watching me. And I can't escape unless I die- or he does."

What Val failed to realize is that nothing can stop a sociopath ex when he sets out to kill you. So being the hunter that he is Gavin tracks his prey and let the games begin once again. There was a weird I love/hate you chemistry between Gavin and Val.

"How dare you run from me. Did you think I would let you get away? I let you run as far as you felt safe, and then I hunted for you. You are mine. Your heart is mine. Your body is mine."

Reading this series it felt as if the author was cooking a tasty pot of soup. Each book she'll add a couple ingredients to entice our taste buds and leave us drooling. In this book we were served the full meal, and it was even more delicious than I expected. This book is disturbing at times. I took many breaks to hug my puppy and think happy thoughts. This book had everything I was looking for: nail-biting thrills, twists, sexyish times, danger and suspense.

"Once upon a time, there was a naive and innocent girl who thought she could tame the beast and live happily ever after. But the beast did not want to be tamed, for he was a beast and beasts care not for such things..."

There are no holds barred.

There are no lengths Gavin will not go to to possess Val.

"He will be the death of me. Unless- unless I am the death of him."

That ending... All I can say is OMG, what the hell, oh no!, what the ****

What an awesome series. I would recommend to readers who enjoy New Adult suspense or psychotic, young serial killers.

Book #1: Fearscape

Book #2: Horrorscape

3.5 stars

Well, that was one interesting ride! Horrorscape is definitely one of my favorite series.
Is just that this last book... somehow I couldn't feel the same chemistry I did with the first two books.

For starters, I like the beginnings, not the endings, so I started reading Terrorscape a little annoyed that this was the end of the journey for me with Gavin and Val. This is purely subjective and has nothing to do with the book.

Then, I lost the primal-romantic-wild-beast image I had of Gavin.

Some of those women had gone with him willingly. Others - he smiled - not quite so much. They had all screamed at the end.

Well, screw you, Gavin! (can I swear on GR?!)

I just dislike him now. He has nothing human left in him. He seems just a hollow shell. (view spoiler)

"When does it end?" His smile was thin and knife-sharp. "When I grow bored." He paused and added deliberately, "Or when you fall out of love with me. Neither seems very likely to happen anytime soon, though, hmm?"

"And when you cease to amuse me - when your leaves begin to wilt and your colors begin to fade - I may very well decide to prune you, the way one might deadhead a drooping rose."

I appreciated Nenia's approach to Val's mental issues, that is was a big part of her life. I liked her emotional instability. It made her more believable. I can understand her feelings towards Gavin. All of them. Things are rarely black and white.

I felt Vance's character was the fifth wheel. I can see no purpose for him except maybe make us like Gavin a little more.

Also, his family. I think they are unimportant unless there's going to be another series about them.

But that ending!

All in all, I highly recommend this series!

Beatrix says

This book was very very dark, but very very well-written. It's utterly crazy, sick, and psychotic, and yet. I loved it.

She was caterpillar and butterfly, both, caught in a cocoon of raw nerves and open sores; she was insanity, wrapped up in the thin, transient wrappings of a temporary lucidity; and she was afraid, because an innate desire lay in the bottom reaches of her psyche for the very poison that was killing her.

I don't want to discuss the plot (just be ready for one helluva crazy ride!), but I want to dedicate this review to praising Nenia Campbell's writing. It's simply exquisite. Sometimes you discover authors who have the most amazing, twisted imaginations, and immense love for words. It's the type of writing my favorite authors have, such as Tiffany Reisz, Abigail Haas, Tarryn Fisher, and now Nenia Campbell. I just love how this woman writes! (Check the quotes below.)

The memory of her eyes had begun to fade from the horizon of his kind, like drying paint. Once, they had struck him as exceptionally vivid, as if she cradled evergreen boughs from the forest in the depths of her irises, but now he thought of her only in terms of the abstract – when he thought of her at all, that is. A palette of colors bundled up in geometric precision.

Emotions snarled like brightly colored threads, some standing out in sharp contrast. Aubergine guilt. Carmine lust. Scarlet anger. Pain, virgin white because nothing was purer than the original aversive stimulus. Fear in cowering, vulnerable pink. Emerald regret. Sorrow, veiled in midnight blue.

Oh, and can we please have a Mecozzi family spin-off? Pretty please?

Update: 12/09/2013

Alright, first off, I actually finished this book literally the second I got it which was a out a week after it came out, but I haven't been able to process my thoughts after reading it because the ending was just.... I need a gif to explain it

Now, I really hope this isn't the end of the series, even though I think it was meant to be a trilogy, but really WHAT THE FUCK WAS THAT?!

I have no words right now, after what happened to Gavin and Val's revelation and IS SHE PREGNANT OR NOT? But I now need more, I need to know whether that whole ending epilogue thingy was her concocting some dream in the hospital and Gavin just jumps out of the corner and yells SURPRISE! Or some shit like that.... Actually I have a list of what I need as of now:

1:AN ENDING TO THIS BOOK! NOT SOME CLIFFHANGER WHATCHAMAKALITY THINGY SOMETHING THAT WILL MAKE ME CRY EITHER WITH JOY AND OR SADNESS

2: Just like a novella on Gavin's family because they seem like my kind of people in the sense that they are more like eighty shades of fucked up instead of fifty

3: Gavin's Mum and Dad need their own series, their relationship seems more screwed up than Val's and Gavin's and we ALL know that is tough to beat!

But otherwise, the story was really good, and it's normally challenging for an author to keep a book audience so captivated with a topic like this and keep on coming up with new material, but you have managed to do it, so amazing and I apologise for my abundance of swearing in this review but that is the only way I am able to personify my feelings.

Original Post

Okay, alright, okay...

First of all, I need to control my breathing...

Second of all, THERE IS A THIRD FREAKING BOOKHOLY SHIT

Words cannot express how excited I am for this book, and the fact that GAVIN is on the cover

I honestly need some teasers for this book, like need them right now, today, this second, in my hand, right f"cking now! I've read Fearscape, I died. When I found out there was a second book, I came back devoured it in two hours, then died again. When I found out there was a third book I came back and read the blurb, died, then had to be killed once more when I found out I wouldn't be staging a resurrection until the 30th of September! I NEED A REASON TO COME BACK BEFORE THAT! And also, after I finish reading this final book, I would like to die peacefully and return to my throne in hell having all my previous qualms about Gavin and Val solved.

Third of all, incest? What? I NEED TO KNOW WHAT IS GOING ON PLEASE FOR ALL THAT IS HOLY!

Anyway, sorry for scaring you, but I needed to let that out and my family already thinks I need to be institutionalised so thank you for reading. But please publish this book soon, I really would like to read the conclusion and if it is even half as good as its two predecessors I am sure I will enjoy every second of my reading it.

I win.

This book is not for the faint of heart. And this review is not for people who have not read the first two books in this trilogy, I will resort from using spoilers, and if i do them they will be at the end, hidden, and with a warning, that is how serious i am about spoilers. Now that you have been warned let get on to the review.

So I did this as a Buddy Read with the fantastic lovely Nellysa, and unfortunately i got a little left behind :( but i don't know what i would have done without her warnings XD probably died. Either way my point to this-ness is that if you are going to start this book, make sure you don't have plans, if you do have plans you might need to break them *shrugs* its the truth.

Kay now ONTO THE REVIEW!

Song Choice: "Lilitu" by Blueneck, and "Guilty Kisses" by Orsten (i want to warn you both those songs are about 8 minutes long, but they are pretty much along with the rest of these choices the songs i listened while reading this book, but i think they did somewhat a good job with the overall tone of the book. And i have like two more for you, I have a feeling that i might have used this song for Gavin before but "My Beloved Monster" by The Eels, and "I Need Some Sleep" by also The Eels for Val.

First thoughts: This was a very intense read, this series got more and more intense as the trilogy went on, and for me I honestly believed they got better and better as we went along (that is not to say that i thought the others were bad because that is a lie so stop twisting my words) what i meant was that sometimes...a lot of times it seems that people always complain that the further into the series the worst the series gets, i don't agree with that statement right now. I had never felt so I want to say dirty but also so very intrigued at the same time. I can only think of one person that I have ever read that made me feel this way ( and i am not shitting you, this is my 594th book i think? ) so that is pretty intense. Anyways this book made me felt caged, it made me feel exhausted (in a good way), it made me feel desperate .

The Plot: Going into this I didn't even think about the Summary, I saw in my news feed people were starting Terrorscape, and I saw that Nenia said she had published it in a blog post, and bye, bye i was off to the wonderful world of amazon to go buy me a book! a very specific book...(it was this one ;) ) So honestly i don't know what the summary even says now so i am going to go say too much about what the summary might have said. Anyways we left Val in quite a state didn't we! And Gavin felt triumphant. But the game is still on, the hunt is still on. "Are you frightened? You should be. This book takes Gavin to a whole new level, you thought that he was bad last book...shit you don't even know. This book's plot like i mentioned in the first thoughts it made me feel everything the characters were feeling (for the most part - i was glad not to feel what Gavin was feeling at some points) oh Gavin made me feel so dirty but oh so right... curse that man! I barely even realize that this was technically a monster of a book at 425-ish pages. I ate it up, and probably read a little too fast and got a little stomach sick, but i couldn't help it even after Nellysa told me to take my time. This book always manages to twist me into this strange, i don't even know i want to say disturbing creature of a person. But i will get to that in characters ;). So the plot surprised me a couple hundred times but when it comes to Gavin I don't try to guess, i don't even pretend to want to guess....oh dear god i just realized something...Gavin controlled my readings O.o i am scared.....

I really do feel like i need to stress the warning that is in the summary which i did see because bold lettering catches my attention. There is rape in this book, there is parts that will most likely make you squirm, and i told you at the beginning of this review this book wasn't for the faint of heart.

Okay I have a feeling that someone who read this book might read this review and (i do not like to be bitched at thank you, you have your opinion i have mine) tell me about how i neglected to mention a few things: okay this is an indie book, and (Nenia - i do love you, you are amazing writer) but we all make mistakes and I know for a fact, that not everyone has an editor but that shouldn't stop them from publishing, yes there were a couple mistakes in this book but it didn't really hinder the story for me. I loved it regardless, and unless one of the people that start to bitch about and say i am not going to finish it because of it is willing to be an editor for indie authors give the book a shot. I mean come on. end of rant!

Thoughts on Characters:

now usually when i talk about characters in series i kept them pretty short because well we know the characters, but here is one thing that i really do love about Nenia's characters is that in each book they grow, whether its for the better or for the worse doesn't matter they change. Their personalities morph and become something new mixed with the old.

So Val: She is still that sweet, sort of innocent girl who didn't protect her heart as well as she should have. As well as I should have... what i did...but seriously :|. She is still very timid around new people, any person really, but she does try to become better, she does try to break from her shell. But depression is weighing heavy on her. (oh i forgot to mention how i loved the well researched - or already known psychology information from Val's classes, :D i even remember some of that from that semester all college students have thinking - yeah i should be a psych major) anyways back to Val but something has changed about Val if i remember correctly last book she did act more like a scared little girl - WHICH REALLY IS UNDERSTANDABLE. anyways in this book I think she decided that she was tired, so very tired of being that scared little girl. While she still bends to Gavin's will at times she still defies him. And that is all about Val i can say :D

Gavin: A shiver of delight might have just crawled up my spine. Shit...that man really fucks with your mind. From book one i was helplessly in love with him. Everything he does, everything he did while should upset me or make me be like i cannot love you I still love him. I don't even know how he does it to be honest. But that i think what makes him my favorite villain/MC guy ever. So dangerous you are sir, you get more dangerous and more animistic in each new book. God Gavin i don't even know what to do with you. At times I hated you i truly tried to hate you ~~but yet i still loved you even at your worst~~ Dangerous character this Gavin, he is addicting, manipulative, dangerous in general, and terrifying. ~~but somehow still slightly redeeming~~ I want to blame my love for him on is very Alpha male-ness personality but i think its more than my love for Alpha males. Its something uniquely Gavin.

The end. No i am not going to tell you about how i feel about the ending i will do it in a spoiler.

(view spoiler)

Gah i want to give you some of my favorite Gavin moments!

(If you run, I will pursue.)

(Can you feel the ties that bind us? Can you feel them tightening?)

Not that it mattered. Dead was dead, whether with a bang or a whimper. not a Gavin moment but i am not telling you said this

(I am her future— and she is simply that: mine.)

“He's psychotic. Brilliant, but insane. And twisted. And sadistic. And cruel.”

“But then, we feel most alive when we are closest to death.”

i literally have half this book highlighted so i will try to stop after one last one!

(You've fallen in love with me, haven't you?)

There are so many more i would like to share but i think this is going over the top as it is.

So there are a few things i wanted to address but i cannot do them because of spoilers so seriously unless you want this book ruined don't read these.

(view spoiler)

okay now that my insanely long review is done you can check out more insanely long reviews at my blog:
<http://theviolethourbookreviews.wordpress.com> :D we appreciate you, and the authors appreciate you i am sure.

Because blood is binding, and because I would rather see you destroyed than see you free or in the possession of another, so I suggest you not try me, or you will suffer as no earthly creature has.”

I'm not sure how to review this book .. I mean , like , where do I begin .. ? Do I start with the characters , or do I start with the story or the plot line ??

2 days .. 2 freakin days and I'm still trying to comprehend what did I read ...

Terrorscape follows a totally different theme for the rest of the books .. Except for Gavin and Val , the scenario , the people involved , the game .. everything is different , yet the same .. What was also different and kinda same at the same time was Gavin and Val's relationship !!! Holy motherfreakers ... these two are just crazy ..

With the hand that wasn't holding onto her, he touched two fingers to his lip. The pad of his fingers was smeared red, staining the whorls of the skin. He stared at the blood for a moment, then looked at her through narrow eyes. She recoiled when she saw his arm flex, thinking he was going to hit her, and when she gasped he smeared his fingers all over her lips.

There is revenge , fear , desire , curiosity , guilt and then there is lust !

Gavin is still VERY dangerous and Val is clearly lost . It almost seemed that she has forgotten how to live the life of a normal 18 yr old ! She was a total robot running on an automated program !

Some of my emotions whilst reading this book :

and then ...

and then finally , the ending ...

That is all folks .. If you haven't read this series .. PLEASE READ IT !

The End of the Game

The final part of Nenia Campbells trilogy

Val has moved away, changed her name, appearance. To save her friends...to save her...from Gavin.

But Val knows that she will never be able to escape and hide for long. Gavin must finish his game...

I almost felt a slight sadness at the end of this fantastically different story..

A sadness for Val and a sadness for Gavin in some twisted way.

How can you tame a person that doesn't want to ever be tamed?
And I finish on one last note...

Val is starting a new life, at a college from far way from home she could get. She changed her name, her appearance and she cut the ties she had with the few people in her life.

Still she can never feel safe again, Gavin had made sure of that. She is a shell of the girl she once was. She doesn't live, she exists.

It wasn't that she was sad - sadness had very little to do with it, really, considering that most of the time she felt close to nothing at all. Feeling required nerves, connections, sensory input. The only thing she felt was numb. And tired.

What to say about this series?

Well I find myself repeating the same words over and over or simply do not have words to fully describe it!

It's DARK, DISTURBING, TWISTED, INTENSE and just TERRIFIC!

If you've seen my updates, you can clearly see how my emotions where all over the place. I devoured each chapter and got scared sh*tless by it.

I can say that this story will get a hold on you, wrap you in it's intensity and leave you completely enthralled by it.

My most common thought through this book?

Oh and of course...

Gavin messed with MY MIND big time,folks!!

Seriously, he have got to be one of the scariest characters I ever read about! He is one SICK F*CKING PSYCHO!! No way around it really!

Those first chapters in his POV "killed" any sort of fascination I still have of him. He crossed every unthinkable line.

And those chapters? Gave me the CHILLS!!

Gavin doesn't take any regard for human life. He is a predator seeking for his prey. And he is the most dangerous type, he can allure with his charm, his cunning, his looks....and when you realize what he wishes it's too late.

And Val?

It's really hard to figure her out! We can see how broken she is because of him but it seems that in some level, he have a hold in her.

I mean, it's messed up the harass she suffered from everyone else (I'm not even talking about Gavin), women calling her slut, whore, men calling her saying they would do the same. People saying for her to kill herself!!! How is the victim the culprit?

Even one of her friends "say" it was all her fault, She should turn herself to him! SERIOUSLY? Is it ok, to rationalize everything, and pinpoint the source of his insanity his obsession with her?

Anyway, if I thought the previous books were DARK this one is millions of times DARKER. And INTENSE!

I lost the times I yelled at my kindle, or stare at it blankly chanting "OMFG! WHAT THE HELL IS HAPPENING?" , "PLEASE, IT CAN'T BE TRUE" or my personal favorite " YOU'RE A SICK SICK BASTARD!!!"!

(view spoiler)

And that ending????

Bravo Miss Campbell! Bravo for an AMAZING series!

I am going to have to take some time, to let my feelings marinate. Seriously, my mind is spinning. This is probably not going to make much sense and seem very disjointed. But, that is exactly how I feel.

This series is so original, I have never read anything like it. These books had me captivated from the beginning, like a moth to a flame. It was a dark, twisted, thrilling experience.

Once upon a time, there was a naive and innocent girl who thought she could tame the beast and live happily ever after. But the beast did not want to be tamed, for he was a beast and beasts care not for such things, and the girl died along with her dreams.

I don't really know how to review this, but I definitely recommend it to anyone who is open to having their mind thoroughly screwed with.

This must be how a mouse felt, knowing that, at every turn, something, somewhere, was planning its demise. The life of the hunted. Fear and vigilance. Vigilance and fear.

Gavin - You my dear are terrifying. I cannot even begin to understand my feelings toward you. I just don't know.

How I felt throughout this book....

Are you frightened?
