It often happens as we age, we keep holding on to nostalgia rather than looking forward.

"?????" (Ganagot) is a beautiful collection of character sketches which PL Deshpande met in his life. He has written about people whom he met accidentally, some he knew very well, some he met at events and some people from his family. We can relate to this book as we read because we have met people like them or have atleast heard about them, people with whom we share a brilliant rapport with and how some people just come as lessons!

The writing is so beautiful ? It has a charm of its own? The sheer beauty of the writing took me back to simpler times where values, goodwill and relationships mattered to people. It left me thinking about the stark contrasts between yesterday's and today's times and how much everything has changed. My heart yearned to live in those times where people used to meet over a cup of tea discussing books and music. Each character sketch was written with a charm and every now and then I used to exclaim, Oh I know a person who has traits like this! It was very relatable to my Marathi soul. Reading this book made me realise how much I love my Marathi ?

A beautiful gem Marathi literature has to offer. I wonder if it'll be translated. I loved how Marathi culture was shown in post independence times. I wonder if we will ever enjoy the goodwill our grandparents or parents enjoy to this date.

Highly highly recommended.

endearing character sketches.... some books and authors always make you feel very good and happy about this world Pu La is one of them. he teaches you to see what is beautiful and appreciate it. He can create heroes and heroines out of the most commonest life you find every day. I always prefer to read his book when i feel i need that dose of "World is Beautiful" theory :)

Aniket Mahajani says

Unlike most of his humorous writing, he has also perfectly narrated about few real gems came in his life, after all its people who we learn something from & who add important chapters to our life, most of these personalities are unknown to this generation, his work therefore is valuable from this point of view

Nitin says

If you are Pu La fan, this is must read.
