Wait...WHAT?!

Laina says

On the bright side, at least these asshole parents don't want to kill Maggie. At least, not yet. Are you fucking kidding me? I just CAN'T stand Gregory. He's such a slimy fucking bastard, who needs to be killed.

Well, I'm glad that they finally told Marco that he's not crazy. Now they just need to tell him about those crazy Whisperer people who dress up like the fucking zombies. Man, that's just so crazy.

I really really don't like Carl talking to Lydia so much. I hope that Maggie lets him out of there soon before Lydia ends up convincing Carl to do something stupid or crazy. Because I can't stop thinking she will.

I don't blame Lydia for being scared. She's in a strange place, with strange people she doesn't know. And she helped her own people kill some of their people. She has a right to be scared.

I kind of hope that Maggie does something really bad to those fucking dangerous brats and their parents. I just hate that Sophia and Carl had to get hurt. I'm just glad their injuries aren't too bad.

I didn't know that Jesus was gay. And I don't have a problem with that. What I have a problem with is the guy that kissed him, is apparently already with someone. I can't stand when people cheat.

The conversation between Carl and Lydia almost seems normal. Or well, at least what passes for normal as things are in the series. I'm glad that Maggie showed up to get Carl and bring him to see Sophia.

I KNEW that Carl was going to end up feeling sorry for Lydia and that he would ask Maggie to untie her. I hope that Maggie doesn't listen to Carl, and leaves her tied up. They don't know how much of a threat Lydia is.

Oh shit, there's some more of those Whisperer people. I hope that they don't kill too many of the Hiltop's people. I also hope that if they do get inside, that Lydia somehow convinces them not to kill too many people.

I don't like that Andrea and Olivia were talking about Eugene and Rosita like their private business is a TV show that they're free to discuss and talk about whenever things get boring. It's people's lives they're talking about.

Oh okay, that's Magna, not Olivia. I can't really tell. Most of the time the women in Alexandria look the same to me. I'm just glad that they're getting along, now that Magna and her friends know the truth about Negan.

Oh look, Rick's back. That's good. I'm glad that he got back home to Alexandria without any problems. I'm glad that Earl saw what happened with Carl and Sophia and that he's not angry about Carl missing their time.

Also, the father of the one of the boy's watching Carl, is fucking creepy. Carl or Maggie need to kill those people and just be done with it. I know that I keep saying it, but damn it, I want that to happen.

I still don't think that I trust Lydia. Maybe my opinion of her will change when she's been around for a while, but I just feel so suspicious of her. And it doesn't help that her people are watching the Hiltop.

Oh shit. I KNEW that that asshole dad was going to end up agreeing with Gregory and going to him and telling him to kill Carl. They both need to get the fuck over themselves and I hope Maggie kills them.

I really want Carl to get the fuck away from Lydia and I can't stand that he gave her his hat. I know that he feels sorry for Lydia and all of that, but he needs to use his head and be careful. She could be dangerous.

Carl makes a new friend

Carol says

[I was so glad to see the hat again and delighted he still had it. (hide spoiler)]

Noe says

- Carl has such a big heart. It might end up backfiring on him, as things usually do when you're kind hearted... but...

Vikas says

Another threat nears our heroes and yet we try to get through the post-apocalyptic world. Carl is free after Sophia confirms his story but he circles back to Lydia who is surefire an electric threat.

Júlio says

I hope Gregory and those others asshole finishes up in jail. They're terrible parents, and they might as well destroy everything in the names of their egos. And it was just touching to see Carl behave as an emotional leader for Lydia. I believe in her, and I think she'll be importante do work things out with the whisperers.

ly says

Tengo sentimientos encontrados para con Lydia. A pesar de que parece ser 'genuina' no logro confiar en ella, siento que puede ser muy manipulativa, pero tampoco la odio. Gregory is such an asshole. Realmente quiero que muera, me caía super mal en los issues anteriores y ahora lo odio.

PLEASE PLEASE DON'T KILL MAGGIE!!

Rocio Meneses Buleje says

Me gusta Lydia, siento que ella va a hacer grandes cosas, independientemente de si es mala o no. Y sobre Carl, últimamente me está sorprendiendo mucho, y se nota que se siente solo ya que sus únicos "confidentes" son prisioneros.
La escena final me intriga mucho.

Serenity says

It's been calm for far too long and something drastic is about to happen.
Carl can't die! Maggie can't die!

SIDENOTE: I love how much Carl has matured

---

Yonaily says

Maggie Green has to die...

Las cosas se ponen buenas. En el caso de nuestros protagonistas, se ponen malas. En algún momento su intento de sociedad perfecta va a venirse abajo, y justo ahora vi que no eso no tardará en suceder. No me gusta que Carl le haya dado su sombrero de policía a Lydia. NO NO y NO. I don't even trust her!

Evan North says

Wow, was this issue boring for the most part. The subplot with Maggie and Gregory is intriguing, but the rest of it is just Carl in the dark talking to Lydia. I'd be lying if I said it wasn't still really interesting, though. When I say boring I mean it in a no zombies killing kind of way. And it's still really good. I just didn't feel this episode brought the story much further. But it's still good.

Yolanda Sfetsos says

This was another one of those in-between issues where things are simmering and I can feel that the shit is definitely going to hit the fan... but not yet. I love Maggie and Carl, so what those assholes are planning better NOT happen. The Walking Dead world needs strong good people who've been through hell and back, but can still emphasize with others. And that's what these two characters are.

I have a feeling that when the assholes decide to attack, the Whisperers are going to strike!

Valeska says

Please don't kill Carl. Please don't kill Maggie. Just, PLEASE.

Whitney says

Oh Carl, I'm worried he's about to learn a very important lesson the hard way.... Don't trust girls, especially ones that like the smell of zombies!!!
