Corduroy at the Zoo B.G. Hennessy , Don Freeman , Lisa McCue (Illustrator)

Corduroy and his friends are taking a trip to the zoo -- and you're invited to join them. As Don Freeman's lovable bear leads the way, discover clever surprises hidden by flaps on every page. Find the mischievous monkeys playing hide-and-seek in the Jungle Walk, or spot the wombats in the Australia exhibit. Visit lions, giraffes, parrots, and crocodiles too. Also, learn fun facts about different species, just like you do at a real zoo. With three to four flaps per page, this book promises a fun-filled, interactive read every time.

Corduroy and friends take a trip to the zoo in this lift-the-flap book.

Preschool kids like this one best of the three Corduroy books we read. Happy little thing without being cheesy or terribly worded like some popup books.

The preschoolers loved this when I read it to them after the Teddy Bears' Trick or Treat. They love flaps. They politely waited their turn to open a flap. These flaps were hard to see - they blended in to well with the picture on the page.

James Terry says

The book is about Corduroy the bear going to the zoo with a couple of his stuffed animal friends. They walk around the zoo and see all the different animals and are fascinated with each one. In the book there are various tabs to reveal the different animals as well as funny things that would be out of place. After Corduroy and his friends have a full day of being at the zoo they end it with an elephant ride.

*The theme is to enjoy the things around you.

*I am biased by giving this book 5 stars because this was one of my favorites as a kid I used to love the pop up tabs and looking at all the details in every picture.

*I would recommend this book because its highly interactive and keeps the child engaged wanting to see the next set of animals on the next page.

Becca Flanagan says

This book had great illustrations and I loved how it had factual information as well as a story within the book. Also, this book had flaps that revealed fun illustrations which I think is a great because it engages the kids into the reading.

I love Corduroy the bear so I loved this book! The book is about Corduroy visiting the zoo and seeing different kinds of animals on his visit. This is a Flip-the-Flap type book (I love those) so I enjoyed that aspect a lot! I also love the little facts on the "zoo signs" throughout the book. Precious. Great illustrations!

Kelci Cox-Griswold says

I really enjoy all of the Corduroy books. This one would be really good to read before going on a field trip to the zoo. It shows students what each animal looks like and gives students a little bit of information about them.
