Uncle John is battening down the hatches and preparing for a Fact Attack in this third, un-bowl-ievable volume of fascinating facts!

Packed with more than 400 pages, Uncle John's Bathroom Reader Attack of the Factoids is a fact-a-palooza of obscure information. Like what, you ask? Here are just a few extraordinary examples:

- * Bats always turn left when they exit a cave.
- * In the 1960s, astronauts trained for moon voyages by walking on Hawaiian lava fields.
- * Lloyd's of London insured Bruce Springsteen's voice for 3.5 million English pounds.
- * Physician Amyntas of Alexandria, Greece, performed the first known nose job in the Third Century B.C.
- * Military toilet paper is printed in a camouflage design, since white could attract enemy fire.
- * Elvis Presley always wore a helmet when watching football on TV.
- * King Henry VIII's ladies at court had a ration of one gallon of beer per day.
- * It takes the energy from 50 leaves on an apple tree to produce one ripe fruit.
- * The only country to host the Summer Olympics but not win a single gold medal was Canada, in 1976.

And that's just the beginning! So what are you waiting for? Attack!

Teena in Toronto says

I've bought a few of Uncle John's Bathroom Reader books over the years and find them entertaining.

The contents in this one include:

Roads & transportation

Geography

Doctors & dentists

Crime and punishment

Travel log

Grub

Quote me

The human body

Rich & famous

Cute stuff

TV & radio

Major awards

Let us entertain you

Family ties

And lots more!

I like these books because the information is bite-size, informative and great when you feel like reading but don't have the time or inclination to get into a novel or more serious book.

Here are some tidbits you may not know ...

* The best-selling fiction author of all time is William Shakespeare. #2 is Agatha Christie.

* The average person speaks about 165 words a minute.

* The temperature of the lit end of a cigarette when the smoker is inhaling is about 1652F.

* Baby mice are called kittens, pups or pinkies.

* 1 in 3 U.S. Caucasian women have blonde hair ... but 1 in 20 is natural * Thousand Island salad dressing got its name from its birthplace - the Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence River along the board of the U.S. and Canada.

Uncle John's Bathroom Reader Attack of the Factoids: Bizarre Bites of Incredible Information is a collection of one or two line bits of interesting facts or trivia.

This was a Netgalley find but I probably would have bought it anyway since I already have a ## substantial Bathroom Reader library.

Here is a brief sampling of the nuggets of knowledge within:

- Only female mosquitos suck blood
- The loganberry was accidentally created when a botanist had a raspberry plant too close to the blackberry plants he was trying to crossbreed.
- Tiger Woods' nickname in college was Urkel
- Beer was once promoted as a way to get kids to go to sleep
- Dan Castellenetta's contract with Fox expressly prohibits him from doing Homer Simpson's voice in public.
- Bubblewrap was accidentally created when two guys were trying to make plastic textured wallpaper with two shower curtains
- Alaska is the state with the most outhouses

Not only is Uncle John's Bathroom Reader Attack of the Factoids: Bizarre Bites of Incredible Information great for bathroom reading, it's also good for long car trips and when a friend or loved one is watching something you're not interested in on TV. Four out of five stars.

I will be the first to admit that I love learning new trivia and Uncle John's Bathroom Reader never disappoints. I learned more odd facts and wacky tidbits than I needed to know. If you've read one Uncle John's then you know what to expect and know that you will never look at mundane things the same way again.

Over 400 pages of tantalizing, mind-blowing facts. Did you know that Elvis always wore a helmet while watching football? Or that bats always turn left when they leave a cave? That's just a tiny sampling of all of the interesting, humorous, and downright bizarre facts you'll discover in Uncle John's Bathroom Reader: Attack of the Factoids. I loved the easy to read format, the engaging topics, and the humor that was displayed throughout. This was actually the first time I had read any of the Bathroom Readers. I was pleasantly surprised to find that there are lots of other editions out there. In fact, I liked this one so much I got several others! A definite must-read for trivia fans that can be enjoyed anywhere, not just the bathroom! Beware though, you WILL lose track of time while reading!

NOTE: I received a complimentary copy of this book in return for my honest review.

It has tons of facts in short articles of one or two paragraphs each. They are grouped into one general subject per page with puny titles. The spell check always misses words with different spelling, different meanings, same pronunciations e.g. their, there and they're.

I was sent a copy of the book for review through Net Galley, as always, all opinions are my own.

I've been buying Uncle John's Bathroom Reader books for my father for years, he's a huge fan. One thing I've noticed over time, and this book is no exception, is that the quality of the content is slowly slipping. With this particular book I found less than 50% of the facts to be interesting and entertaining and there were a large amount of facts that are so commonplace I couldn't understand why they were in the book to begin with. I really would like to see future books more well thought-out because as a long time reader the new books just aren't quite cutting it.

well that ended abruptly. was great until then.

Received from Goodreads through their drawing. Started on 3-10-14. Finished 3-14-14. For someone like me who's curious about damn near everything, this book was awesome. In the intro, the compilers say that their standard for facts is that "it has to be so interesting and surprising that you feel compelled to share it with others." That was my experience in sharing much of the info with my wife who's just as curious as I am. I've never read any of their many other fact books, but if you have a child who doesn't like to read, I'll bet giving him/her this book would encourage reading in no time. There are 10-12 facts per page, most just one-liners, about just about any topic you can think of. Many made me want to look it up to learn even more. What an incentive to read!!!

Tom Darrow says

Another solid offering.

A bit of bathroom humor there.

Cherie says

Trivia is fun. Random small bits of information that can tell us more about our world. Or at the very least liven up a gathering. The other wonderful thing about trivia is it makes for light, fun reading. Which the Uncle John's Bathroom Readers seem to be the epitome of when it comes to trivia.

I really don't have much to say on this book to be honest. Mainly because it's exactly what it says on the cover. A huge collection of trivia facts. Nothing more, nothing less. It's a good source to get your trivia. Just don't expect much difference from any of the previous Bathroom Reader books.
