This was lovely and funny.

3.5 stars

The story sets on the preceding evening of Greg and Chris' wedding day. They cuddle, talk, laugh, and recall a funny, slightly embarrassing, very unfortunate, still significant episode from their life, involving sparkly red nail polish, a matching thong, a fire accident, and an important revelation.

I was glad to see the wedding too, it was lovely.

Sweet story, recommended!

Lovely glimpse into an established couple about to be married life. It's funny and affectionate with lots of cute details (the niece, the cat, and Tammy).

Maybe I could have enjoyed seeing Chris and Sam and the sparkly thong, but it isn't really a story for here.

Really lovely and quite timely.

This was a lovely story - short and simple but filled with the kind of love you just know will last!

Greg and Chris have been together for many, many years and are getting married later that day. As they reminisce about their time together you get a sense of the type of men they are and the relationship they have.

Their love is obvious, as is the attraction they have to one another but there have been moments when everything hasn't been totally perfect. But like any good relationship they have overcome these hurdles and focused on what is important.

It also clear that they have a great rapport which is obvious in the dialogue and comments bounced back and forth between the men. It is only a short story but there are a couple of cute and funny lines. My favourite..."You're such a girl.""My erection begs to differ."

4+++ stars - I really enjoyed this sweet and humorous established couple story. The guys are different, but totally right for each other. And, seriously, any story that features a sparkly red thong and a cat who's a smartass is a win in my books. :D

Lucy says

The thong incident was funny but even better was waking up with glitter polish. That's the kind of partner you want - one that you can laugh with. This was just so cute and tender.

I'm writing out of pure emotion right now. I can't analyze the writing, I can only say this story made me melt, and it made me laugh, and I wish Chris and Greg really existed because they are such a great couple.

Short sweet and funny.

I like how together these two are, how connected and in love they are after nine years civil of partnership and on the eve of their wedding.

The recollections show a life of shared humour, little pranks and silliness. Kind of wish we could have been reading about the sparkly thong event as it happened rather than as a flashback, but it was very funny - wouldn't mind another appearance of the fireman ;) I kind of suspect a pic of that will turn up at an anniversary celebration somewhere down the line.

What a sweet story. I could totally picture these sitting there reminiscing on their wedding day. I'm not usually a fan of flashbacks, but this one worked really well. Nicely done and great job matching the prompt!

Bárbara says

Wow, this was so sweet!

It was lovely, and funny and hopeful and... Seriously. Great.

I have a smile on my face right now because this was such a feel-good kind of story. I loved it and the characters and their relationship felt so pure and honest and something to really aim for.

Just wow.

Another great story from the LHNB picture prompts.

I like established couples, this story is short, it covers a short amount of time but because it's about a couple that has been together for years and we get little glimpses of those years, it feels complete. It's sweet and touching, and I loved the vows they give each other.

Justin says

Funny, sweet and perfect for a little pick-me-up!

Adam says

D'awwww!

This was a very sweet read, giving readers a look at Chris and Greg's relationship on their wedding day, and the incident two years in the past which eventually lead to them getting married. It was a nice mix of fluff, humour, and just a tiny bit of drama to liven things up.

'So Hot With Love' is exactly the kind of story I've come to expect from J.H. Knight. It's a well-written contemporary romance, that focuses on how the main characters grow to become a closer and better-functioning couple. My only complaint is that we didn't get to see a fulfillment of the manties kink. Sparkly red thongs need to be fully appreciated.

Overall, an easy and quick short. It was a nice break from a heavier book I'm currently reading.

I am willing to admit that I may be a tiny bit biased as this is the story for my prompt but I love reading about established couples and this story was sweet and funny and exactly what I was looking for.
