Sandra Boynton cracks me up--she does simple brilliantly! What will the pig wear for a costume for Halloween? A dragon? A banana? You'll have to read to find out . . . get ready to giggle!

When my girls were 3 1/4, this was one of Sabrina's favorite books. We read it so many times that Sabrina memorized the book and would tell me word for word what was on each page. It was wonderful listening to her go through the book. And then at the end Pookie gets to say Boo!, and she would always get a big kick out of it. I'm looking forward to getting the book out of the library next Halloween so that we can reexperience it.

I haven't heard my youngest laugh this hard with a book before - her reaction was priceless and her laughter was infectious. The illustrations and silly words make this a great Halloween read aloud for toddlers.

A little pig tries on costume after costume until he finds just the right Halloween disguise.

GREAT Halloween-themed read aloud for toddlers and PreK. I think this would make a nice flannelboard story too if you created a paper doll-like pig character and made a variety of costumes for him to try on.
