The Megiddo Revenge Jesse Smith

A murky group of international businessmen, working together with Arabic and Chinese Jihadist terrorists as well as vicious Somali pirates, plot to precipitate an Armageddon-like catastrophe.

Inextricably linked to the vicious scheme are Patti Tang, a beautiful, rich Chinese-American ship-owner who is hated by many Chinese Muslims, and Jon Lawson, a ship's captain whose family has been murdered by the terrorists. With a common enemy, their paths inevitably merge and while the western world's intelligence agencies are incapable of countering the unspeakable scheme, Patti and Jon finally succeed.

Fran Smith says

A brilliant novel an alarmingly plausible plot. The author is clearly an expert on seafaring matters and international terrorism. Just the right amount of romantic interest too.

Highly recommended.
