Amy wants to avoid emotional baggage by seeking a passionate night with an anonymous lover. The hotel guarantees hot sex with a mysterious stranger and Amy isn't disappointed. Her secret lover instinctively knows how to please her. Once the night is over, Amy is shocked to discover her mystery man not only knows her, but has wanted her for some time. When her ex finds out, sparks start to fly!

Amy loves to be loved and decides an anonymous partner is just what she needs. She goes to a hotel, puts on a blindfold, and waits for her mystery lover. Amy enjoys an amazing night of sex with an experienced man. But she is horrified to learn that her partner is actually her ex's best friend. When Brad calls to confront her, Amy can't believe it. The experience convinces her of one thing; she needs Troy back in her life. Unfortunately, Amy is in for a little surprise.

Excerpt from Secret Admirer:

She pulled out a delicate mask. It reminded her of a Mardi Gras mask, except there were no holes for eyes. So this pretty thing is my blindfold. There were instructions included in the gold bag. She followed them, noticing one instruction in particular. "Do not take off the mask under any circumstances. Removal will result in immediate dismissal. No exceptions." Amy put the bag in the closet and walked to the bed.

She put the blindfold over her eyes. The fit was tight but comfortable. She would not be able to peek without taking it off. Amy lay on the luxurious bed, waiting for her partner to come. Her heartbeat echoed in her head while she waited. The anticipation was thrilling - the not knowing who would come through the door or what he would do with her. Amy wondered how the night would unfold. Would he be shy and uncertain, sexually aggressive, or sweet and romantic?

All of her senses went on red alert the instant she heard the key in the lock. It opened slowly. Amy's breath increased. Then the door closed shut and there was the click as the lock slid into place. He's here.

The characterization was poor and two-dimensional. I wasn't impressed with the writing style nor the sex scene.

Red Phoenix, Sensual Erotica: Secret Admirer (Red Phoenix, 2012)

Had I known the Sensual Erotica series (generic name, no?) was actually a series that contained the same characters and had an overarching storyline, I probably would have started at the beginning instead of dipping in for the first time with the tenth story. No matter, this is pretty good stuff, certainly good enough to entice me to go back and pick up the others and start over again from the beginning. In this one, Amy, our protagonist, is sick of being celibate, and is convinced by her best friend to visit a hotel where ladies volunteer to be blindfolded and provide pleasure to total strangers. There follows the expected night of passion, and so far, it doesn't matter that this is part of a series; it's the closing pages where Phoenix ropes in pieces that you won't grasp without backstory. Still, as a teaser for the series, in my estimation it did its job well; I'll be going back and reading the earlier books in the relatively near future. ***

Well, this was fun! The whole hotel idea was a little risque but enjoyable. Roger is a creeper, I think. I feel bad for Brad. I know Amy's having a hard time but her choices seem dangerous and careless. I still want to smack Troy. Still pressing on...series goes by fast and holds my interest.
